FAIR CHANCES

April 19th, 2019

Criminal Justice Committee House of Representatives:

I have spoken to Brandon DuBois Representative Brann's clerk and requested to get a meeting with Representative Brann and to be given the opportunity to testify before this bill is passed through the house and was referred to this committee. I have sent opposition a few weeks ago, and have started a campaign in opposition to House Bills 4031 and 4032.

In the last few years our Legislators have come together in a Bi-Partisan manner and Michigan can be proud of the fact that we have become "Smart on Crime" while keeping our streets safer. The data in Michigan supports that the work our Legislators have done has made a difference.

House Bills 4031 and 4302 take a step backwards to the progress made in criminal justice reform. The statute as it currently reads works good for clients in the system. To increase fines and fees to a set amount of $30.00 a month is outrageous for clients that are mounted with debt for restitution, child support, child care, and taking care of their families. No one disputes that people that commit crimes must have consequences but putting an extra burden in fines, fees, and GPS monitoring continues to keep people in poverty instead of allowing them a real second chance at redemption. If you keep the statute the way it is currently and clarify how fees and fines can be waived for the indigent, justice would be better served and Michigan would continue in the bragging rights of lower crime rates and recidivism. It would be more beneficial to have clients do community service by cleaning our highways or having them fill in all the pots holes until we can pay to get the roads paved. The State of Michigan would benefit more from community service than fines and fees that they won't ever see.

The current statute allows for a sliding scale based on a client's income. I run a probation and parole program and not one of the clients pay more than $20 a month, and instead most pay $7.50 a month. I can provide you this documentation. The current statute allows for indigent clients' fees to be waived by their probation agent and Michigan Department of Corrections. In the current bill there is NO mechanism in place to define indigent or who will be eligible. If they are unable to pay and was not considered indigent, they have to pay an attorney to get the fines and fees waved, adding even more fees and debt for the client. Leaving indigency qualifications up to the MDOC's or a judge's digression leaves room for conflict and bias.

Please accept this written testimony in opposition of House Bills 4031 and 4032. This is our second submitted testimony as we have acquired more information since that time. We hope that this information will influence your decision for the vote next Tuesday, April 23rd. This is one piece of legislation that doesn't need to be fixed and legislators should spend more time on bills that will help the State of Michigan.

Sincerely,

Monica Jahner-Manager
